Sunday Morning Lessons

February 5 – Collide: Totaled

For our lives to change we must learn to stop holding on to the status quo. We must allow ourselves to collide with the only one who can change our lives for eternal purposes.

February 12 – Lovesick: Obsess much?

Do we place too much value and importance on opposite-sex relationships? Do we let them begin to shape our identity, self-worth, or lifestyle? When we obsess over relationships, we begin to lose sight of who God made us to be.

February 19 – Lovesick: Balancing the scales

When our focus is lopsided, our lives become lopsided as well. When we allow one area of our life to overwhelm the others, our whole life suffers. How can we understand the balancing act of life and love to grow in our relationships?

February 26 – Lovesick: It Takes Two

Sure, dating and relationships take two people together to make it work. But if we are honest, there is a great temptation to make it very one-sided. How do we get away from the selfish aspect of dating, and learn Biblical principles of how to honor the opposite sex in all relationships?

March 4 – The Christian's Court: Judging Outsiders

One of the most common accusations leveled against the church today is that it is full of judgmental hypocrites. Are we guilty of perpetuating that stereotype? What does 1 Corinthians teach us about a proper attitude toward the sin we see in non-Christians?

March 11 – The Christian's Court: Judging Insiders

Are we committed to the purity of the church? Do we leave room for grace? What does 1 Corinthians teach us about how we are to deal with sin issues inside the church? What should our attitude be towards fellow Christians who fall into sin?
